

INTERNATIONAL TOURISM

«International Tourism» is designed for Master's degree students. It is a self-contained course which is destined for forming students' theoretical knowledge and practical skills of organization and analysis of international tourism.

The aim of the course is to develop skills and abilities of the future specialists to analyse trends and outlook for international tourism market.

According to the results of studying «International Tourism» students will obtain general professional competences, which will enable them to deal with the tasks relating to methodology of research of international tourism market.

